PAY MORE FOR LIGHT

LOCAL CO. ANNOUNCES INCREASE IN RATE ON APRIL 30

POWER CHARGE UP TOO

Raise Is Made Necessary, Manager Hellmers Says, Because of High Cost to Manufacture Electricity

In an advertisement appearing in today's issue the Maryville Electric Light & Power Company announces an increase in their rates and the proposed rates will average less than the rates in force previous to their reduction in January, 1917, when the company voluntarily reduced their rates for current upon the basis of increased business.

The present rates and the proposed rates for lighting are as follows:

For first 5 KW hours or less consumed in any month, 15c. No change is made here.

For next 20 KW hours or less consumed in any month, the present rate is 12c and the proposed rate will be 13c.

All over 25 KW hours consumed in any month the present rate is 6c and the proposed rate will be 7c.

The discount will be 5 per cent instead of 10 per cent as at present on consumption of 8 KW hours, or more in month if paid in ten days.

A minimum charge of 75 cents per month is made for meters.

The power rates are:

Up to 50 KW, 10 cents and no discount.

From 50 to 75 KW, 9 cents, and the discount reduced from one cent to ½ cent per KW.

From 75 to 125 KW, 7 cents, with a discount of ½ per cent instead of one per cent per KW as formerly.

From 125 to 300 KW, 6 cents, with a discount of ½ per cent instead of one per cent per KW as formerly.

The special rates on electricity for cooking remains the same, but the discount is changed from 10 per cent to 5 per cent.

Steam heating rates remain as before, including discount, but a surcharge of 20 per cent will be added to each bill after deducting cash discount.

Manager C. C. Hellmers of the company says the rates had to be raised on account of the increased cost entering into the manufacture of electricity, the main factor of which is coal. Coal alone this year will increase cost of operation over $7,500.

Mr. Hellmers states the proposed schedule will go into effect on April 30. Any objection should be made in writing to the public service commission at Jefferson City at least ten days prior to the effective date of the proposed schedule. Mr. Hellmers says:

"If any consumer contemplates making objection in writing, we would be pleased to have them come to our office before filing protest, where we will be pleased to give any information as to why we must ask this temporary relief."

TRAINS AND MAILS EARLIER

Better Turn Your Clock Ahead Before Retiring Tonight If You Expect to Catch a Train

The postoffice received yesterday from W. L. Tilton, chief clerk of the railway mail service at St. Louis, official notice that at 2 o'clock Sunday morning all clocks will be advanced one hour and all trains will be operated in accordance with the new time, and that all mails will be received and dispatched in accordance with the change of clocks. The postoffice here will observe the new time.

Most people will turn their clocks and watches one hour ahead before retiring tonight and the rest will make the change tomorrow morning. Once the clocks and watches are turned one hour ahead everywhere there should be no confusion, for things will be run on the same schedule as before.

The Democrat-Forum will observe the new time.

WOMEN TO KNOW HOW

100 HAVE ALREADY JOINED HOME ECONOMICS CLASSES

COURSES BEGIN APRIL 15

Government Experts Will Aid Housewives In Best Methods of Food Conservation

Enthusiasm among the women of the city to aid in the spring food conservation campaign is very high and they are responding splendidly to the call for registration on April 10, which is the beginning of the government home training school in home economics which starts April 15.

More than one hundred women in the city have already decided to take the work. Every home in the city has been visited by those who are assisting Miss Bertha Beal, county chairman in this part of the work. In some cases the housewife was absent and a later call will be made. However, should any fail to be solicited, there will be ample opportunity for her to acquaint herself with the work before April 10, when the women are expected to register for the courses.

Instruction Begins April 15.

Monday, April 15, will start the lessons and this day will be reserved each week for the colored women.

On Tuesday, April 16, the lessons for others will be started and they will be given each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoon for the four weeks of each course.

Mrs. W. K. James of St. Joseph will give a public address on the afternoon of April 10. The place for this gathering and the place of holding the schools of instruction will be announced later.

All Women Given Allotments.

All the towns in the county are being made acquainted with this work through Miss Beal and those who can not enter the classes in this city will be given an opportunity to take the course at some nearer point.

This instruction is worked out by government experts to help the housewife, who is just now in an especially trying position in endeavoring to supply the needs of her family and at the same time save the food which America, and America only, can provide for her own armies and those of her Allies.

"IS NOT A STEP BUT A JUMP"

Missouri Notes Writer Says Merchants' Institute Is a Progressive Move for Maryville

"A merchants' institute, planned to do for merchants what farmers' institutes do for farmers, will be Maryville's novelty next week," says Missouri Notes in the Kansas City Times, and adds, "this isn't a step in the right direction, but a jump."

Howard S. Sharp, secretary of the Bartlesville, Okla., Merchants Association, enclosing the above, writes Postmaster Todd asking that information be given the organization there concerning the institute and Ralph Stoddard. The letter was given to Secretary Claypool of the Commercial Club, who will furnish the information desired.

Tuesday and Wednesday sessions of the institute will be held both afternoon and night at the Zook building formerly the McCrary millinery store on North Main street. Already over 100 merchants have made reservations for the supper to be given Monday night at the First M. E. church.

HOLDING MEETINGS

LIBERTY LOAN COMMITTEE TO VISIT ALL COUNTY TOWNS

INTEREST IS AROUSED

Meetings Have Already Been Arranged In Nine Towns and Speakers Have Been Provided for

From reports made to the executive committee in charge of the third Liberty Loan drive it seems sure that next Saturday in Nodaway county will see the start of the biggest war funds drive yet undertaken. It is also assured that from 2 until 3 o'clock on that day, April 6, will see an almost complete cessation of business activities throughout the county, when celebrations and demonstrations will be held commemorating the first anniversary of the war and the start of the Liberty Loan drive.

Meetings were held last night at Arkoe, addressed by Geo. Robb Ellison and H. L. Haines, and also at Burlington Junction, addressed by Chairman W. C. Pierce and A. W. Hoover. These were for the purpose of going over matters with the school district canvassers, and a like meeting is arranged for Quitman tonight, Elmo Monday, Farnard Tuesday and Pickering Thursday.

Plenty of interest has been manifested at all these meetings. People show a general awakening to the importance of the occasion and to the absolute necessity for Nodaway county to get out of the "slacker" list.

"It is now assured," said Chairman W. C. Pierce this morning, "that our anniversary day, April 6, will be generally observed throughout the county. Up to this hour meetings have been arranged and speakers provided for in nine towns in the county and it is evident the rest of them will be covered within a short time.

"The idea of holding school house meetings on the night of April 12, as suggested by the secretary of the treasury, is taking root and many of these meetings have been arranged, and still more are in contemplation."

BUY YOUR COAL NOW

FILL YOUR BINS EARLY, SAYS FUEL ADMINISTRATION HEAD

THERE IS NO RISK TO RUN

Unless Householders Cooperate With Government There Promises Big Shortage for Next Winter

State Fuel Director Crossley is out with a statement urging every householder in the state to lay in his supply of coal for next winter without delay. He says that under the zoning system arranged by the national fuel director the mines of this state will have to produce 750,000 more tons of coal than they ever produced before. His statement to the public follows:

Missouri mines must produce approximately 750,000 tons of coal over last year's tonnage as a result of the zoning system adopted by the joint fuel and railroad committee at Washington. There can be no shipments of Illinois coal west of a line which follows the Wabash railroads southeast to Moberly, thence along the line of the M. K. & T. to the Missouri river at Jefferson City, and south along the western line of Cole, Miller and Pulaski counties to the Frisco railroad, thence southwest to the Oklahoma line. It is possible that an exception will be made as to certain Kansas City steam coal contracts from the Springfield, Illinois, district. Kansas, Iowa and Arkansas are expected to produce at least two and a half million tons more coal than last year, which means that the mines in all these states must be kept running through the spring and summer.

There's No Risk to Run.

"This, however, is impossible, unless a market be furnished for the coal. There is no provision for storage at the mines and as fast as coal is brought to the surface it must be loaded into railroad cars. These cars must move immediately to destination and be unloaded, but the retailer cannot be expected to store sufficient coal for the winter needs of his customers, which makes it the plain duty of every householder who can afford it to lay in his supply, thereby insuring himself against shortage and at the same time making it possible for the mines and railroads to continuously operate and distribute coal. What we gain in the spring and summer will count against the winter months.

Must Keep Mines Going.

"The fuel administration earnestly requests the early storage of coal. It is the only way to solve the problem and prevent a repetition of last year's troubles. It should be borne in mind that there will be a serious shortage unless our mines are kept in constant operation, because it is physically impossible to produce and transport all the coal required during the fall and winter months.

"Mine prices for Missouri and Kansas have not yet been announced, but Illinois prices are the same as last year. If there is any change in prices at the mines it will, of course, affect the retail prices, but there should be no delay in buying because the retail prices all over Missouri will be fixed within a short time and all consumers who order now can contract as such prices as the state fuel administration may announce for April. It is not at all likely that coal will be cheaper later in the summer, so the public should not hesitate about buying now. An early canvass will be made and if those who can afford to buy their coal early refuse to do so the fuel administration will feel in no wise obligated to supply them coal later. In other words, this is not a matter which everybody may suit his own convenience, but one in which cooperation is demanded.

SUPERGUN KILLS 75 IN PARIS

Shell From Long Range German Gun Hits Church Filled With Worshipers—Swiss Counsellor Killed

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Paris, Mar. 30.—The latest bombardment of Paris by the German super gun in which seventy-five persons were killed and nearly a hundred wounded when a shell struck a church, failed to terrorize Paris today. Instead the city is seethed with anger and reaction with one hot determination to fight to a finish and seek vengeance for the latest outbreak of German frightfulness.

The same church was struck by a shell during the celebration of high mass last Sunday and many casualties resulted.

The killing of the women and children has caused a feeling of horror and intense indignation in Paris. The German explosive missile fell amid an assemblage of peace loving people, who were beseeching heaven to send an enduring peace on the day they were commemorating the greatest sacrifice ever offered that peace should reign on earth.

Feeling runs high in Paris. It is no peace crowd that walks the streets or congregates in the cafes, theatres and churches. The stern resolution to conduct the war to a successful termination is written on the face of everyone.

The American Red Cross once more distinguished itself in rescuing injured persons from the edifice.

BATTLE ON FRENCH LINE BEGINS ANEW

GERMANS BATTER TWENTY-FIVE MILE FRONT BETWEEN MOREUILL AND LASIGNY

FRESH BRITISH-FRENCH TROOPS ARE ARRIVING

Germans Reported to be Digging In and Consolidating Positions — Kaiser Swaggers Behind Lines Talking Loudly to British Prisoners

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Paris, March 30.—The battle on 25 miles of the French front between Moreuill and Lasigny has been resumed with great violence, the French war office announces today. The French communique said that the French troops were supported by many reserves and are stubbornly resisting strong German attacks.

London, March 30.—Mezieres, south of the Somme river, has been captured by the Germans, the war office stated today. The British immediately launched strong counter attacks and captured a number of German prisoners. The Germans were fought to a standstill north of the Somme and were able to make only a few weak efforts. There was sharp fighting in the Demuin sector on the Amiens-Noyon road, but all efforts of the Germans in that district failed with heavy losses. General Haig reported gallantry of mounted and unmounted British cavalrymen in repulsing German attacks. All attempts of the Germans to take Demuin failed, after heavy fighting.

Mezieres lies about twelve miles southeast of Amiens, which is now generally regarded as the German objective, and is the near point of the salient which ten days ago in the German offensive has pressed into the Allied front in Picardy.

Washington, March 30.—The entire army in training in the United States will be transported to France without delay. This is the reply to the request of Lloyd George. The United States has loyally accepted the naming of General Foch as general in command to co-ordinate the military operations on the west front.

With the American Army in France, March 30.—Frech British and French troops are constantly arriving on the battle front to take up the battle when the proper moment arrives, according to information today. The exhausted Germans are reported to be digging themselves in and consolidating their positions.

London dispatches from the Hague today picture the kaiser as swaggering about on the Picardy battle field behind the German lines and talking in a loud voice to the British prisoners.

Amsterdam, March 30.—The stream of wounded being carted back from the Picardy front and hauled by motors and trains to scores of cities throughout Germany is the greatest in the history of the war and is having a very depressing effect on the German people.

Keeping Yourself Well

Run Down, Aching

people need a good tonic that will send the blood tingling through the body, enrich it by improving the digestion, and clean it by expelling the waste matter. Health is a matter of plenty of rich blood, free from impurities.

PERUNA

dispels inflammation of the blood making organs,—the digestion—gives tone and "pep" to the membranes that line the lungs and the digestive tract, and invigorates the entire system.

You can have health if you take care of yourself and take Peruna when you need it.

A RAW, SORE THROAT

Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole.

And Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Just spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It is fine for quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). Nothing like Musterole for croupy children. Keep it handy for instant use.

30c and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50.

As built up by being a steady depositor and a regular user of a bank's facilities, is worth more than a letter of introduction.

It is partly what others say of you, but especially what is proved by your own actions, as to your character and financial ability. It will help your credit to be a depositor at this bank.

Y. M. C. A. NEEDS MORE MEN

The Great Need Now Is for Men Who Can Serve as Secretaries In Home Cantonments

E. M. Claypool, secretary of the Commercial Club, is in receipt of a letter from Chas. R. Parson of the war work council of the Y. M. C. A., in which he asks that men be recruited for the Y. M. C. A. for service in the cantonments in the United States. The letter follows:

"Kansas City, Mo.
"March 26, 1918.

"Mr. E. M. Claypool,
"Maryville, Mo.
"My Dear Mr. Claypool:

"I have just assumed a relationship with the war work council of the Missouri Young Men's Christian Association as personnel secretary—which means that, under the state war work recruiting committee I am to deal with the problem of securing Missouri's proper quota of men needed for the home camps and overseas.

"You were one of the men who rendered splendid service in November's drive for the thirty-five million war work fund, and we naturally turn to you for your cooperation in securing the right kind of men to use in the service for which this money was raised.

"I might state that, up to date, there has been a surplus of men for overseas who desire to go as speakers, this surplus of speakers being due to circumstances in the war zone which make it impossible to arrange for more than a limited number of men in religious meetings. I will add, however, that a number of the big men of the country have been able to adjust their work in such a way that they can go abroad for a few months on their own charges; and of course a limited number of such men can be used in the service in France.

"The great need now is for men who can serve as secretaries in the home camps, and for overseas work serve as secretaries in the association huts, os as physical directors, accountants, automobile drivers and as general utility men.

"Of course, you understand men of draft age, unless exempted for some physical reason, could not be used overseas; also, with reference to overseas work, no men will be accepted who have German or Austrian parentage.

"Very likely you will know of some men in your territory who would be glad, in the present emergency, to render this service with the men who are serving the colors. If so, it would be appreciated if you could have such men get into communication with me, and I will be glad to handle their application in the proper way.

"I am enclosing herewith self-addressed envelope for your convenience.

"Sincerely yours,
"CHAS. R. PARSONS,
"Personnel Secretary."

The following is from the Gallatin, Mo., Democrat of Jan. 10. It explains itself:

With his coming here on Jan. 15th Dr. C. W. Prettyman, of Chicago, commences his 24th year of monthly visits to Gallatin. This is a remarkable record. Dr. Prettyman has filled nearly every date he has made during the last twenty-three years. He has won the confidence of our people by his success in the treatment of diseases in which he specializes and his universal fair dealing with his patients. He is a practitioner whom we can recommend, a splendid gentleman, in whom those suffering from the ills of life can place implicit trust. The Dr. has no knowledge of this testimonial and it is written because of our admiration of the man and his methods.

See him at Linville Hotel Monday, April. 8.—Adv.

Thomas C. Davis of Conception Jct., was a Maryville visitor today.

TOO WEAK TO FIGHT

The "come-back" man was really never down-and-out. His weakened condition because of overwork, lack of exercise, improper eating and living demands stimulation to satisfy the cry for a health-giving appetite and the refreshing sleep essential to strength. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules, the National Remedy of Holland, will do the work. They are wonderful. Three of these capsules each day will put a man on his feet before he knows it; whether his trouble comes from uric acid poisoning, the kidneys, gravel or stone in the bladder, stomach derangement or other ailments that befall the over-zealous American. Don't wait until you are entirely down-and-out, but take them today. Your druggist will gladly refund your money if they do not help you. Accept no substitutes. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on every box, three sizes. They are the pure, original, imported Haarlem Oil Capsules.—Adv.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Gas Attacks and Spies.

Three days after we had silenced Fritz, the Germans sent over gas. It did not catch us unawares, because the wind had been made to order, that is, it was blowing from the German trenches toward ours at the rate of about five miles per hour.

Warnings had been passed down the trench to keep a sharp lookout for gas.

We had a new man at the periscope, on this afternoon in question; I was sitting on the fire step, cleaning my rifle, when he called out to me:

"There's a sort of greenish, yellow cloud rolling along the ground out in front, it's coming—"

But I waited for no more, grabbing my bayonet, which was detached from the rifle, I gave the alarm by banging an empty shell case, which was hanging near the periscope. At the same instant, gongs started ringing down the trench, the signal for Tommy to don his respirator, or smoke helmet, as we call it.

Gas travels quickly, so you must not lose any time; you generally have about eighteen or twenty seconds in which to adjust your gas helmet.

A gas helmet is made of cloth, treated with chemicals. There are two windows, or glass eyes, in it, through which you can see. Inside there is a rubber-covered tube, which goes in the mouth. You breathe through your nose; the gas, passing through the cloth helmet, is neutralized by the action of the chemicals. The foul air is exhaled through the tube in the mouth, this tube being so constructed that it prevents the inhaling of the outside air or gas. One helmet is good for five hours of the strongest gas. Each Tommy carries two of them slung around his shoulder in a waterproof canvas bag. He must wear this bag at all times, even while sleeping. To change a defective helmet, you take out the new one, hold your breath, pull the old one off, placing the new one over your head, tucking in the loose ends under the collar of your tunic.

For a minute, pandemonium reigned in our trench—Tommies adjusting their helmets, bombers running here and there, and men turning out of the dugouts with fixed bayonets, to man the fire step.

Re-enforcements were pouring out of the communication trenches.

Our gun's crew were busy mounting the machine gun on the parapet and bringing up extra ammunition from the dugout.

German gas is heavier than air and soon fills the trenches and dugouts, where it has been known to lurk for two or three days, until the air is purified by means of large chemical sprayers.

We had to work quickly, as Fritz generally follows the gas with an infantry attack.

A company man on our right was too slow in getting on his helmet; he sank to the ground, clutching at his throat, and after a few spasmodic twistings went West (died). It was horrible to see him die, but we were powerless to help him. In the corner of a traverse, a little, muddy cur dog, one of the company's pets, was lying dead, with his paws over his nose.

It's the animals that suffer the most—the horses, mules, cattle, dogs, cats and rats—they having no helmets to save them. Tommy does not sympathize with rats in a gas attack.

At times gas has been known to travel, with dire results, fifteen miles behind the lines.

A gas, or smoke helmet, as it is called, at the best is a vile-smelling thing, and it is not long before one gets a violent headache from wearing it.

Our eighteen-pounders were bursting in No Man's Land, in an effort, by the artillery, to disperse the gas clouds.

The fire step was lined with crouching men, bayonets fixed, and bombs near at hand to repel the expected attack.

Our artillery had put a barrage of curtain fire on the German lines, to try and break up their attack and keep back re-enforcements.

I trained my machine gun on their trench and its bullets were raking the parapet.

Then over they came, bayonets glistening. In their respirators, which have a large snout in front, they looked like some horrible nightmare.

All along our trench, rifles and machine guns spoke, our shrapnel was bursting over their heads. They went down in heaps, but new ones took the places of the fallen. Nothing could stop that mad rush. The Germans reached our barbed wire, which had previously been demolished by their shells, then it was bomb against bomb, and the devil for all.

Suddenly my head seemed to burst from a loud "crack" in my ear. Then my head began to swim, throat got dry, and a heavy pressure on the lungs warned me that my helmet was leaking. Turning by gun over to No. 2, I changed helmets.

The trench started to wind like a snake, and sandbags appeared to be floating in the air. The noise was horrible; I sank onto the fire step, needles seemed to be pricking my flesh, then blackness.

I was awakened by one of my mates removing my smoke helmet. How delicious that cool, fresh air felt in my lungs.

A strong wind had arisen and dispersed the gas.

They told me that I had been "out" for three hours; they thought I was dead.

The attack had been repulsed after a hard fight. Twice the Germans had gained a foothold in our trench, but had been driven out by counter-attacks. The trench was filled with their dead and ours. Through a periscope I counted eighteen dead Germans in our wire; they were a ghastly sight in their horrible-looking respirators.

I examined my first smoke helmet. A bullet had gone through it on the left side, just grazing my ear. The gas had penetrated through the hole made in the cloth.

Out of our crew of six we lost two killed and two wounded.

That night we buried all of the dead, excepting those in No Man's Land. In death there is not much distinction; friend and foe are treated alike.

After the wind had dispersed the gas the R. A. M. C. got busy with their chemical sprayers, spraying out the dugouts and low parts of the trenches to dissipate any fumes of the German gas which may have been lurking in same.

Two days after the gas attack I was sent to division headquarters, in answer to an order requesting that captains of units should detail a man whom they thought capable of passing an examination for the divisional intelligence department.

Before leaving for this assignment I went along the front-line trench saying good-by to my mates and lording it over them, telling them that I had clicked a cushy job behind the lines, and how sorry I felt that they had to stay in the front line and argue out the war with Fritz. They were envious but still good-natured, and as I left the trench to go to the rear they shouted after me:

"Good luck, Yank, old boy; don't forget to send up a few fags to your old mates."

I promised to do this and left.

I reported at headquarters with sixteen others and passed the required examination. Out of the sixteen applicants four were selected.

I was highly elated because I was, I thought, in for a cushy job back at the base.

The next morning the four reported to division headquarters for instructions. Two of the men were sent to large towns in the rear of the lines with an easy job. When it came our turn the officer told us we were good men and had passed a very creditable examination.

My tin hat began to get too small for me, and I noted that the other man, Atwell by name, was sticking his chest out more than usual.

The officer continued: "I think I can use you two men to great advantage in the front line. Here are your orders and instructions, also the pass which gives you full authority as special M. P. detailed on intelligence work. Report at the front line according to your instructions. It is risky work and I wish you both the best of luck."

My heart dropped to zero and Atwell's face was a study. We saluted and left.

That wishing us the "best of luck" sounded very ominous in our ears; if he had said "I wish you both a swift and painless death" it would have been more to the point.

When we had read our instructions we knew we were in for it good and plenty.

What Atwell said is not fit for publication, but I strongly seconded his opinion of the war, army and divisional headquarters in general.

After a bit our spirits rose. We were full-fledged spy-catchers, because our instructions and orders, said so.

We immediately reported to the nearest French estaminet and had several glasses of muddy water, which they called beer. After drinking our beer we left the estaminet and hailed an empty ambulance.

After showing the driver our passes we got in. The driver was going to the part of the line where we had to report.

How the wounded ever survived a ride in that ambulance was inexplicable to me. It was worse than riding on a gun carriage over a rock road.

The driver of the ambulance was a corporal of the R. A. M. C., and he had the "wind up," that is, he had an aversion to being under fire.

I was riding on the seat with him while Atwell was sitting in the ambulance, with his legs hanging out of the back.

As we passed through a shell-destroyed village a mounted military policeman stopped us and informed the driver to be very careful when we got out on the open road, as it was very dangerous, because the Germans lately had acquired the habit of shelling it. The corporal asked the trooper if there was any other way around, and was informed that there was not. Upon this he got very nervous and wanted to turn back, but we insisted that he proceed and explained to him that he would get into serious trouble with his commanding officer if he returned without orders; we wanted to ride, not walk.

From his conversaion we learned that he had recently come from England with a draft and had never been under fire, hence his nervousness.

We convinced him that there was not much danger, and he appeared greatly relieved.

When we at last turned into the open road we were not so confident. On each side there had been a line of trees, but now, all that was left of them were torn and battered stumps. The fields on each side of the road were dotted with recent shell holes, and we passed several in the road itself. We had gone about half a mile when a shell came whistling through the air and burst in a field about three hundred yards to our right. Another soon followed this one and burst on the edge of the road about four hundred yards in front of us.

I told the driver to throw in his speed clutch, as we must be in sight of the Germans. I knew the signs; that battery was ranging for us, and the quicker we got out of its zone of fire the better. The driver was trembling like a leaf, and every minute I expected him to pile us up in the ditch. I preferred the German fire.

In the back Atwell was holding onto the straps for dear life, and was singing at the top of his voice:

We beat you at the Marne,
We beat you at the Aisne,
We gave you hell at Neuve Chapelle,
And here we are again.

Just then we hit a small shell hole and nearly capsized. Upon a loud yell from the rear I looked behind, and there was Atwell sitting in the middle of the road, shaking his fist at us. His equipment, which he had taken off upon getting into the ambulance, was strung out on the ground, and his rifle was in the ditch.

I shouted to the driver to stop, and in his nervousness he put on the brakes. We nearly pitched out headfirst. But the applying of those brakes saved our lives. The next instant there was a blinding flash and a deafening report. All that I remember is that I was flying through the air, and wondering if I would land in a soft spot. Then the lights went out.

When I came to, Atwell was pouring water on my head out of his bottle. On the other side of the road the corporal was sitting, rubbing a lump on his forehead with his left hand, while his right arm was bound up in a blood-soaked bandage. He was moaning very loudly. I had an awful headache and the skin on the left side of my face was full of gravel and the blood was trickling from my nose.

But that ambulance was turned over in the ditch and was perforated with holes from fragments of the shell. One of the front wheels was slowly revolving, so I could not have been "out" for a long period.

The shells were still screaming overhead, but the battery had raised its fire and they were bursting in a little wood about half a mile from us.

Atwell spoke up. "I wish that officer hadn't wished us the best o' luck." Then he commenced swearing. I couldn't help laughing, though my head was nigh to bursting.

Slowly rising to my feet I felt myself all over to make sure that there were no broken bones. But outside of a few bruises and scratches I was all right. The corporal was still moaning, but more from shock than pain. A shell splinter had gone through the flesh of his right forearm. Atwell and I, from our first-aid pouches, put a tourniquet on his arm to stop the bleeding and then gathered up our equipment.

We realized that we were in a dangerous spot. At any minute a shell might drop on the road and finish us off. The village we had left was not very far, so we told the corporal he had better go back to it and get his arm dressed, and then report the fact of the destruction of the ambulance to the military police. He was well able to walk, so he set off in the direction of the village, while Atwell and I continued our way on foot.

Without further mishap we arrived at our destination, and reported to brigade headquarters for rations and billets.

That night we slept in the battalion sergeant major's dugout. The next morning I went to a first-aid post and had the gravel picked out of my face.

The instructions we received from division headquarters read that we were out to catch spies, patrol trenches, search German dead, reconnoiter in No Man's Land, and take part in trench raids and prevent the robbing of the dead.

I had a pass which would allow me to go anywhere at any time in the sector of the line held by our division. It gave me authority to stop and search ambulances, motor lorries, wagons and even officers and soldiers, whenever my suspicions deemed it necessary. Atwell and I were allowed to work together or singly—it was left to our judgment. We decided to team up.

Atwell was a good companion and very entertaining. He had an utter contempt for danger, but was not foolhardy. At swearing he was a wonder. A cavalry regiment would have been proud of him. Though born in England, he had spent several years in New York. He was about six feet one, and as strong as an ox.

We took up our quarters in a large dugout of the royal engineers, and mapped out our future actions. This dugout was on the edge of a large cemetery, and several times at night in returning to it, we got many a fall stumbling over the graves of English, French and Germans. Atwell on these occasions never indulged in swearing, though at any other time, at the least stumble, he would turn the air blue.

A certain section of our trenches was held by the Royal Irish rifles. For several days a very strong rumor went the rounds that a German spy was in our midst. This spy was supposed to be dressed in the uniform of a British staff officer. Several stories had been told about an officer wearing a red band around his cap, who patrolled the front-line and communication trenches asking suspicious questions as to location of batteries, machine-gun emplacements, and trench mortars. If a shell dropped in a battery, on a machine gun or even near a dugout, this spy was blamed.

The rumor gained such strength that an order was issued for all troops to immediately place under arrest anyone answering to the description of the spy.

Atwell and I were on the qui vive. We constantly patrolled the trenches at night, and even in the day, but the spy always eluded us.

One day while in a communication trench, we were horrified to see our brigadier general, Old Pepper, being brought down it by a big private of the Royal Irish rifles. The general was walking in front, and the private with fixed bayonet was following in the rear.

We saluted as the general passed us. The Irishman had a broad grin on his face and we could scarcely believe our eyes—the general was under arrest. After passing a few feet beyond us, the general turned, and said in a wrathful voice to Atwell:

"Tell this d—n fool who I am. He's arrested me as a spy."

Atwell was speechless. The sentry butted in with:

"None o' that gassin' out o' you. Back to headquarters you goes, Mr. Fritz. Open that face o' yours again, an' I'll dent in your napper with the butt o' me rifle."

The general's face was a sight to behold. He was fairly boiling over with rage, but he shut up.

Atwell tried to get in front of the sentry to explain to him that it really was the general he had under arrest, but the sentry threatened to run his bayonet through him, and would have done it, too. So Atwell stepped aside, and remained silent. I was nearly bursting with suppressed laughter. One word, and I would have exploded. It is not exactly diplomatic to laugh at your general in such a predicament.

The sentry and his prisoner arrived at brigade headquarters with disastrous results to the sentry.

The joke was that the general had personally issued the order for the spy's arrest. It was a habit of the general to walk through the trenches on rounds of inspection, unattended by any of his staff. The Irishman, being new in the regiment, had never seen the general before, so when he came across him alone in a communication trench, he promptly put him under arrest. Brigadier generals wear a red band around their caps.

Next day we passed the Irishman tied to the wheel of a limber, the beginning of his sentence of twenty-one days, field punishment No. 1. Never before have I seen such a woebegone expression on a man's face.

For several days, Atwell and I made ourselves scarce around brigade headquarters. We did not want to meet the general.

The spy was never caught.
